

Blood-RNA “biomarkers” of Alzheimer’s disease are myeloid cell counts in disguise

The AD blood gene signal is predominantly explained by myeloid leukocyte composition.

Limited evidence for a composition-independent signature; APOE genotype alone (AUC 0.71) beats the whole panel.

Lesson: adjust composition on discovery AND validation, and use donor-level statistics — or you rediscover cell counts.